

CONGRESSIONAL BROADCASTS

Although congress has consistently refused to permit its proceedings to be broadcast to the taxpayers who foot the bills, one New York radio station has now taken the bull by the horns, will dramatize congress to its listeners once a week.

Station WMCA, New York, has decided to take the most interesting portions of each week's debate on the floor of the house and senate, re-broadcast them with actors portraying the legislators, give the public a sample of what sort of representation it is getting in the nation's capital.

The idea was originally proposed to Florida's Sen. Claude Pepper by WMCA's new owner, former Federal Housing Administrator Nathan Straus. Pepper then introduced a resolution in the senate urging that debates be broadcast, but has been able to get nowhere with his resolution.

Meanwhile, Straus polled the radio industry on his plan, found that many other stations want to do the same thing and will probably broadcast dramatizations similar to that being worked up by WMCA. Congress can't stop stations from dramatizing its debates, so will probably watch its speeches more carefully when it learns what is being done.

MANPOWER SHORTAGE

The War Manpower commission is considering a drastic new plan to provide manpower for war plants which are now having difficulty getting enough labor.

In the shortage areas, according to WMC's new plan, factories which have recently been put back on peacetime production after having worked on war contracts will be closed until the war plants have sufficient labor. This should remedy the fact that workers are flocking to those plants which have already been reconverted, figuring that the jobs there are more permanent.

PRICE OF BUTTER UP

Because OPA's dairy price chief, Arnold J. Burke, refuses to place a ceiling price on cream sold by producers, the price of butter may soon go up five cents per pound.

This is to permit butter-makers to compete with ice cream and cream cheese manufacturers in buying cream. The latter have been getting better prices for their products, so have been able to pay more for cream than the butter factories.

To solve this inequality, the War Food administration has proposed to OPA that the price of butter to the public be increased five cents per pound. Despite its attempt to hold down prices, OPA may have to go along. This increase will not solve the problem, though it will mean slightly more butter.

Early this month, the butter industry advisory committee urged OPA to place a ceiling price on cream at the producer level, but Burke would not consider it.

NOTE — Burke, incidentally, submitted his resignation to OPA some time ago, but his resignation was never acted upon. It will be shortly, to his chagrin.

REPORT ON CHINESE COMMUNISTS

U. S. concern regarding the long-smouldering Chinese situation is coming to a head as a result of two developments:

1. It became apparent that the Japs could not be licked merely by island-to-island operations in the Pacific. This type of warfare might destroy even the Japanese main islands, but because the Japs have been moving their war industries to China, a major campaign on the Chinese mainland is going to be necessary.

2. The United States was able to send an official mission to visit the Chinese Communists or Agrarians for the first time in five years. This was arranged as a result of Vice President Wallace's trip. The mission's subsequent report, recently reaching the president's desk, convinced him that somehow or other the two divergent factions inside China must be coordinated.

HOW GUERRILLAS OPERATE

The American mission's report to the White House is a very human document. It tells a vivid story of the lengths to which free people will go to fight an aggressor. With no ammunition to speak of — perhaps averaging 20 rounds to a man — Chinese guerrillas will attack a much stronger Jap force in order to take away their supplies.

One of their most effective weapons is home-made dynamite, manufactured from saltpetre, and sometimes mixed with odds and ends of metal to make hand grenades. Dynamite has been too precious to use in blowing up railroads, so the guerrillas rip up railroad ties and rails by hand. To thwart them, the Japs now rivet their rails together.

So many telegraph poles have been sawed off by the Communists that the Japs now have to go to the trouble of making concrete poles.

Mrs. Lydia Brooks Married In Eureka December 8th

Mrs. Lydia Brooks was married Friday, December 8, at 2 p.m. at the home of Rev. Herbert L. Maahs of the Trinity Lutheran church in Eureka, California, to Edgar M. Herron. Following the wedding ceremony a delightful wedding dinner was enjoyed at the home of their mutual friends, Mr. and Mrs. George Hagood, of Eureka.

Previous to Mrs. Brooks' departure from Campbell, a dinner in her honor was given by Mrs. Abe Klassen, and twenty-five friends presented her with a beautiful gift.

Mrs. Brooks, mother of Mrs. Hans Hansen, had lived in Campbell for many years where she has a host of friends and well wishers.

On Sunday, December 3, a farewell turkey dinner was served in her honor at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Hanson.

Theta Rhos to Put On Initiation for Ada Rebekahs

Ada Rebekah lodge will convene Tuesday evening, December 19. During the business meeting the Fidelas Theta Rho club will put on an initiation for the lodge. The committee for the evening will consist of Lillian Ohlen, Frances Swain, Emma Cooper, Eveleona Grant, Thelma Hansen and Hans Hansen.

Members are requested to attend Clara Rebekah lodge, as two of our candidates will be initiated along with a class of candidates of Clara lodge on Monday, December 18.

The Past Noble Grand club will meet at the home of Etta Eddlemon, Thursday evening, December 21, with an exchange of Christmas gifts.

Methodist Bazaar Great Success

The Methodist church parlors were a hum of activity Friday afternoon with scores of shoppers in the various departments of "Ye Country Store", all appropriately named, and doing a thriving trade.

Tables were set in the assembly room, each with an old tea service at which a succession of hostesses presided over the tea and coffee cups. Typical of New England, patrons had a choice of apple, mince or pumpkin pie.

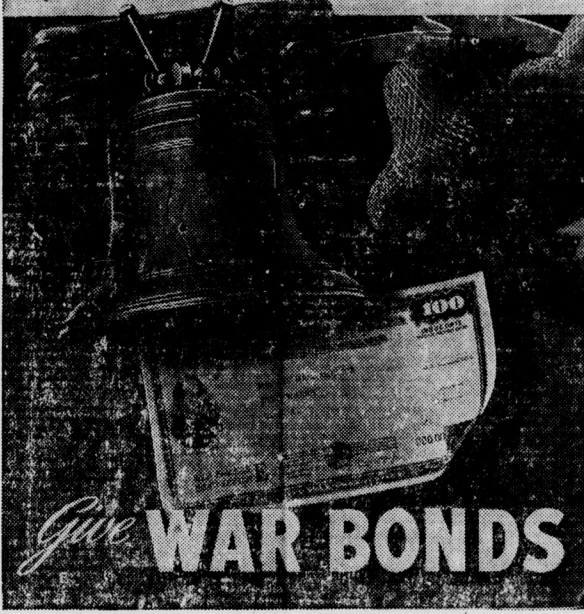

A fireplace arranged in one corner and a hand loom in operation contributed much to the other colonial settings.

A program of Christmas numbers was presented throughout the afternoon.

Sea Bee Visits Sister Here

Mr. Owen E. Frost arrived on furlough last week after two and one-half years service in the South Pacific and at Pearl Harbor. Mr. Frost is a Sea Bee with the 16th battalion. His visit was a complete surprise to his sister Mrs. J. A. Lessard of 171 Alice avenue. He left Thursday for a visit with other relatives in the middle west and east.

Lt. Toney Shelton Awarded Fourth Oak Leaf Cluster

P-47 Thunderbolt pilot 1st Lt. Toney Shelton has been awarded a fourth Oak Leaf Cluster to the Air Medal for "meritorious achievement in sustained combat operations over Germany". Announcement of the award was made by the 356th Fighter Group Commander, Lt. Col. Philip E. Tukey, Jr., of Cape Elizabeth, Maine.

Lt. Shelton is the husband of the former Dorothy A. Pope of Tacoma, Washington. He was commissioned February 6, 1943, at Williams Field, Arizona, after training at Chico and Visalia, California.

Death Summons Bass C. Coffey

Death came to Bass Columbus Coffey of North First street, Campbell, on December 11, and services were held Tuesday afternoon from the Rutherford Funeral Home.

Officiating at the services were Rev. Ernest Dillard, Bude H. Little and H. C. Mathews, with David F. Rutherford, soloist, and Mrs. Virginia Rutherford organist.

Interment was in Santa Clara City Cemetery.

Coffey was born in Alabama, November 3, 1869, and had lived here but a few years.

Surviving are his wife Cornelia Coffey, sons, J. E. Coffey of Campbell, Earl of Sanger, Texas; Elmer of Clovis, New Mexico; daughters, Mrs. Gertrude Pounds and Stella Coffey of Campbell and Mrs. Laurel Spelce of Mundy, Texas.

Country Woman's Club to Meet 18th

The next regular meeting of the Country Woman's Club will be held on Monday, December 18, at 2:30 p.m. Following the business session, Mrs. S. N. Hedegard and her committee will be in charge of Red Cross work. Assisting the chairman are, Mesdames G. W. Burrow, Hubert Wagner and Lloyd Selig. The committee asks members to bring needles, thimbles and scissors.

Pundita Circle Met With Mrs. L. J. Carboni Nov. 22

Pundita circle met November 22 with Mrs. L. J. Carboni, the co-hostesses were Mrs. George Smith, Mrs. M. E. Purmort and Mrs. Wendell Thomas. Mrs. Stanley Smith, president, conducted a short business meeting after which Mrs. Purmort introduced Mr. J. Bond, one of the proprietors of the Elliott Nursery, who gave a very interesting talk illustrated with moving pictures, showing the seed farms near Santa Maria.

After a discussion of flowers and their culture, the hostesses served refreshments. The meeting was adjourned to meet January 3, with Mrs. Mitchell.

St. Lucys to Hold Pot-Luck Supper

St. Lucy's Women's Club will hold its annual combined pot-luck supper and Christmas party at the parish hall on Saturday, December 16, at 6:30 p.m. Parishioners and members of the club are asked to bring an inexpensive toy, for each member of their party, and either a hot dish or a salad.

Mrs. L. Dardanelli is chairman for the evening's supper, with Mrs. Ira Grim in charge of the entertainment. A visit from Santa Claus is anticipated during the course of the evening.

The children of St. Lucy's Sunday school class will have their Christmas party on Saturday morning, at the parish hall.

Representing Campbell at the Red Cross blood bank this week were Miss Leona Sells, Mrs. J. H. Robinson, Mrs. J. Parks, Fred R. Welch, Mrs. Charlotte Rice, A. C. Holder, Zearl Tierney, Mrs. H. W. Herman, Mrs. L. M. Bradshaw, Mrs. Wanda Reynolds, Carl J. Reynolds, and Miss Gertie Holt. The Red Cross expresses sincere thanks for the help of all who participated in the successful campaign to sign up new donors.

Johannesburg Missionary Writes Christmas Chapter

Before we moved into the Clinic and into the Sister's and Nurses' homes, dear Mrs. Schreiner and Mrs. Immelman spent the whole week putting up curtains and polishing floors in preparation. They even brought over their "boys" and electric polishers for our wooden floors, and went over and over them getting them in wonderful shape.

As to our "Sister's Residence" (European), it is adorable. First of all, are our three bedrooms, one for each "Sister", all beautifully light and airy and opening into a hall-way which leads to our spiffy big white built-in bath tub! In mine, I have the blue Mexican rug Helen gave me and on my bed my blue tufted candlewick spread which I brought with me when I first came out. In each bedroom is a perfectly beautiful built-in wardrobe with a big space for suitcases. The walls of the whole house, including the kitchen, are cream and the floors are all parquet.

As to our sitting room-dining room with its breakfast nook and with almost one whole side of it windows and looking out onto glorious mountain views, that is simply beyond words. An open fireplace too. And electric lights also. Then as to our delicious arm chairs, all bought at a second-hand sale and re-upholstered and re-covered in soft greens and browns, by our dear grand, ever helpful friend, Mrs. Immelman. The gold curtains and the nice rug upon the floor all bought at the same sale. As for the rug, it was so dirty when we bought it, we could not see the colors properly, but we liked the pattern so bought it very cheaply. After a good soap and water bath, it turned out to have soft greens and browns and with just a touch of rust in it, which goes beautifully with the room. Doesn't it all sound like a fairy tale?

The native nurses also have a lovely home with a large sitting room, big bathroom, and a nice big kitchen and twelve single bedrooms (one apiece) and a big built-in wardrobe in each. This is called the "Nurses Cottage." And just outside and down the hill a little way is our now abandoned old two-story home, with the slum world 'round about it. This has now been taken over for administrative offices for the Township Government. But because we are so close to this world of crime and wickedness it has proved wise for us to have a night watchman on our place.

In a recent letter, Ruth wrote "Winter has suddenly descended upon us, and it is bitterly cold out, and a bit bleak inside as well! All day long a high wind has been blowing clouds of dust over the whole land, and everything feels gritty, and looks red from it. The red dust on Bones' white fur makes him look like a new species of pink canine. I think I have not mentioned Bones for a long time, but he is very much our protector even though he is getting a bit old. I heard Bones frantically barking the other evening and in a few minutes Elias, our night watchman, came to me triumphantly hanging onto the arm of an intruder whom he had found prowling around the Nurses' Home. The man looked so scared that I had an almost irresistible desire to laugh; however, I restrained myself until we had thoroughly gone over his sins, and until I had gone out with Elias to speed him on his way with the warning that a repetition would mean the police. As soon as Elias let go, he ran as though the Devil was after him. So evidently I succeeded, since he has not been seen again! This is the third person Elias has found and brought to me for discipline.

In spite of crime and tragedies all about us every day and all the time, there are beautiful things which happen among these dear slum people and many lovely surprises. One of the latest came at the end of the Health Week which closed with a gorgeous parade. The surprise for me came when the result of the street collections was brought to me and Fifty Pounds ($250) mostly in

Kiwanis Club Host to Campbell Grid Champions

The Kiwanis club enjoyed a post-season football evening Tuesday when the Campbell high school team were their guests. Fathers of some of the boys and others who were just well wishers of the team were visitors.

Following introductions aside from the honor guests, James W. Dent, chairman, read an amusing description of a football game played in England and written by an English commentator.

Coach Walter Hill made a few remarks on his team's work of the season, and then presented each member.

A few of the boys told some of the highlights of their experiences on the field. Co-Captains Pete Ragus and Bob Hall spoke especially high of the team sportsmanship and the high regard felt for their coach.

Lt. Edgar Brady, the speaker of the evening, had several years experience as a high school coach in Oklahoma before entering the service.

He dwelt upon the fine spirit and sportsmanship exemplified by a team in good clean sports, saying that it is the most important thing in our fighting men today, "spirit", and his advice to the boys was to carry on their fighting spirit in their future lives.

President Herbert Shadle closed the meeting with congratulations to the winners.

Next week the Rev. Norman Lundblad, pastor of the Swedish Lutheran church of San Jose will give a Christmas message, with Clarence Nelson, chairman.

To be Listed In College "Who's Who" for 1933-44

Miss Marian Jacobson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Jacobson, Hamilton avenue, who will receive her A.B. degree from San Jose State in June, is among those students who will be listed in the 1943-44 issue of Who's Who in American Universities and Colleges. This book will be released in April.

Miss Jacobson is a member of the Beta Gamma Chi sorority at San Jose State, is a member of the Student Court, President of San Jose Players, an honorary acting society, and a member of Orchesis, the honorary modern dance group. She was an assistant director of the schools annual musical show, Revelries, which was presented in March, 1944 and was co-director of a variety show which was presented at several Army camps thru the U.S.O.

Miss Jacobson graduated from Campbell Union high school in 1940.

The Campbell post office will be open Saturday afternoons, December 16 and 23.

pennies was counted out. The basket was so heavy it took two of us to lift it. All this a gift toward the cost of the new Health Center, of course. The children of the Holy Cross Mission gave Ten Guineas ($52) in pennies in addition to the above. We served fully 400 people that afternoon. It was a great wind up for Health Week.

WAR MONUMENTS

Time Magazine reports a revolt springing up thru-out the Nation against the traditional memorials which are built after each war.

Instead of grandiose creations in granite or monstrosities in marble, the trend is toward more practical remembrances such as parks and recreational centers.

This is a sensible approach. After World War I, many millions of dollars were spent in building massive structures in stone that had little practical use and still less artistic value.

But even the planning of more useful memorials should not be an excuse for spending huge sums of money. At the present time, in the desire to express their gratitude to our war heroes, some communities are planning projects which are much more ambitious than their treasuries can really afford. The result is that taxes are being increased to meet the cost.

In some instances, the expense of a project is excused by the argument that it will provide postwar employment. This is true in a degree, but it should be realized that a genuine solution to the postwar job problem—in which veterans have a vital stake—will not be reached by merely constructing war memorials or any other type of public works.

The real need after the war will be to keep the expenses—and therefore the taxes—of local, state and the Federal governments at the lowest practical figures so that America will not be hampered in the march toward a sound postwar economy.

Great monuments may be impressive. Marble and granite memorials can be beautiful. But we can best pay our debt to the men in this war by giving them, and the sons and daughters of the honored dead, the opportunity to live free from the burden of excessive taxation.

WAGE TAX FREEZE

Efforts to hold the pay roll Social Security tax at its present level met with strong Congressional support when the House passed the measure by a vote of 262 to 72. The main problem, however, is not getting the bill through Congress, but in gaining a two-thirds majority in both houses to offset a presidential veto. Obviously, most congressmen feel that wage earners already have enough taken out of their pay envelopes without deducting still more for social security. It is pointed out that the $6,000,000,000 credit built up in the social security reserve fund is far in excess of anticipated needs, and that until Congress has had a chance to further study the whole plan it is best to continue the present rates. The present issue has nothing to do with the proposal to bring approximately 20 million more American workers into the old age pension plan.

But we were hardly prepared for the "feat" of a Jap pursuit plane which, according to Tokyo, smashed right through the fuselage of a B-29, came out on the other side, and continued to fight.

Remarkable—imagination!

Kathleen Norris Says:

These Wartime Giddy Wives

Bell Syndicate.—WNU Features.

"Doris cried bitterly on the dark day I said 'good-by' to her."

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

SOME of the husbands who are enduring terrible hardships in far-away places are naturally worried because the little woman at home is having such a hard, dull, lonely time.

Other husbands have the problem of Capt. Jerome Blank, who writes me from Guadalcanal.

"There is not a man down here," says his letter, "who is not sick for home. Every one of us talks of it, dreams of it. Through heat and fatigue, insects and prickly heat, long hikes through rough grass, long waits under the shimmering midday sun, the men talk of trees, and the shady porch at home, and Mom's cooking. We know we have to get through this and we'll get through it, but Lord, how we want the day to arrive when we can start for home!"

"Well, what I'm writing you about, Mrs. Norris, is my wife, Doris. I'm 42; she's 28 and extremely lovely. Sometimes I don't dare let myself think how lovely she is. After a most unfortunate first marriage I was divorced 11 years ago; six years later I met Doris, who had also had an unhappy young marriage. Both our former partners have found other mates, so that we felt entirely free to marry, and for two years our love story was unclouded and exquisite. Then came the war, and I came out here. Doris cried bitterly on the dark day I said goodby to her, and the memory of her lonely little figure turning away haunted me.

"But now it's all different. She is living in a group of friends, who like herself are idle, with plenty of money. She is having a whirl of a good time. It is all dancing, drinking, card games, country clubs. She goes to races and night clubs, buys new frocks and hats; is in Florida with one friend, going to Santa Barbara with another; she visits a luxurious Adirondacks camp and 'never in her life had such a gorgeous time.'"

One Man's Name.

"Of late months the name of one man has been in her letters, or rather has been conspicuously dropped from her letters. But my jealousy supplies his name. He is a rich and attractive young fellow, debauched by a mild stomach complaint from active service; idle, amusing and unscrupulous. Dislike of him and envy of him have been burning me up for weeks; I cannot get him and the thought of his admiration of my wife, out of my mind.

"Now comes a letter from Doris that has set me on fire. She is making a long stay with her mother, a thing she never wanted to do before. She says she 'is a sorry and ashamed little girl who played too long with fire,' and that when I come home 'there is something I must forgive her.' Also I am not to believe anything Margaret or Sally write me. These are my sisters. She says she is 'done with Tony forever.'"

"Mrs. Norris," the letter ends, "this has thrown me into a state of indescribable agony. I cannot eat

AGONIZING SUSPICION

Far harder to bear than tropical heat, galling insects and the danger from the enemy is a soldier's haunting fear that his wife may be wandering from him in his absence. When he has her veiled admission in writing that she has been unfaithful, the bitter chagrin is almost maddening. What can I do, asks an unfortunate officer. "I am in a state of indescribable agony. I cannot eat or sleep. If she has really betrayed me, I can never forgive her."

or sleep. My mind is filled with his detestable triumph, his smugness at home while I fight through hot day after day down here. At one moment I want to write her a scalding letter, at another I find myself weakening into tears of pity and love. If she has really betrayed me, I can never forgive her. But how shall I know? If she has just been foolish—but no, those phrases I quote above mean more than that. I am miserable, miserable, miserable. What position shall I take? What can I do?"

You can do, my dear Captain Jerome, what thousands of other husbands and wives, with all sorts of new problems to face, must do after the war. You can come home, meet your wife, look your changed circumstances in the face, decide where you will live and what line of work you want to take up, find a house, settle down to matrimony and forget the past. If you want to be happy—if anyone wants to be happy after this war, it must be by a heroic closing of doors. It may be that Doris' charm and beauty and leisure were not proof against temptation. Well, you chose her for those very qualities; you didn't want a sensible, modest, faithful little woman who would keep your house and your memory safe.

War develops abnormal situations, in which men and women act as they would never act ordinarily. There is going to be an enormous amount of straightening and adjusting to be done when the war is over. It is for every one of us to lessen the grand sum total of that uncomfortable process as much as we can. It is for every one of us to overlook, forget, forgive in every direction; not to demand explanations not to rake up the past, not to indulge suspicion and curiosity.

Doris is evidently a little frightened herself at the length to which she has carried this flirtation. But being beautiful, young, idle and rich, she will presently embark on another. Steel yourself not to bother your head about them. When you come back, expect a welcome from a loving wife, build your lives together as if there had not been this grim interruption, and whatever you do after you have given peace-time marriage a fair trial, let matters go on as they are now, and solve tomorrow's problem when tomorrow comes.

Carpet Beetles Breed in Lint

By doing a thorough job of fall housecleaning, housewives can keep down the damage done by carpet beetles. In many cases of severe infestation the breeding place of these pests has been found in cold air registers and similar places where lint has been allowed to accumulate over a long period of time. Eventually the larvae came out and wandered around looking for more food. For that reason, thorough housecleaning is essential to eradicate these insects.

Wassel Patient Receives Citation

Chief Fire Controlman Thomas Broghetti, one of the wounded men brought out of Java by Lt. Comdr. Corydon M. Wassell, has been awarded a Presidential Unit citation in ceremonies on the Los Angeles campus of the University of California.

Borghetti, now stationed at the university as a teaching assistant in gunnery in the Naval unit there, was presented with a facsimile of the citation awarded to men of the U.S.S. Houston for action from December 7, 1941 to February 28, 1942. He was wounded while aboard and was taken off before the battle in which the Houston was sunk. His home is 2116 Constitution Lane, Long Beach.

State College Named Vocational Guidance Center

San Jose State college has been chosen as a vocational guidance center for disabled veterans by the Veterans administration, under their vocational rehabilitation and educational program.

After a preliminary interview and medical examination at the Veterans administration in San Francisco, veterans with 10 per cent disability or more, who are residents of San Mateo, Santa Clara, Santa Cruz, Monterey, and San Benito counties, will be referred to San Jose State college.

Here they will receive extensive interviewing, examinations and counseling designed to guide them in education for the field which they desire and for which they are best suited.

Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Cramer and Mrs. Nellie Haynes of Burlingame are leaving Monday, December 18, for a visit with relatives and mutual friends in Los Angeles and vicinity.

Wage Ceilings Are Told for Growers

Answering inquiries regarding wages by growers for pruning and after harvest work, the California wage board of the office of labor represented by Rolan F. Balbou publicizes that where specific rates have not been established for a particular farm operation, the rules provided by War Food Administration's general regulations govern farm wages. These provide a top level of either $200 a month, or the hourly equivalent of 85 cents, or the highest legal rate paid by an individual employer for a particular job during the year preceding December 9, 1943, whichever is higher. An employer may increase rates up to these amounts without permission, but can not increase any rates above these levels until approval has been applied for and granted by the War Food Administration.

Provisions of the General Regulations apply in this section to all winter and spring farm work, including pruning, tractor driving and tillage operations of all kinds, and harvest of spring vegetable crops, according to Roy B. Lausten, Wage Board field representative for this area with headquarters in San Jose.

Where the 1943 rate yardstick is used to determine this season's pruning wage, it must be a rate that was established before December 9, last, Lausten said. Any pruning rates above 85 cents an hour that were initiated after December 9 are not legal rates, he warned, and can not be used by a grower to determine what he will pay for the current job.

THE BOOK MARK

by marty

"THE WANDERER" by Nathan Schachner.

This is a novel about the life of Dante Alighieri, "The Divine Comedy" Dante.

To read this book renews one's conception of the famous lover, poet, philosopher, scientist, dreamer—in short, the universal man.

The author, in this dramatic work, has, to some extent, brought Dante to the level of a human being in that he shows him in his struggles against obstacles common to all of us and brings him thru the battles bearing wounds and insults but with his head up. Dante was the most colorful and tragic figure of the thirteenth century. His love story was the most unusual and his times the most turbulent.

Born in Florence, Italy, in 1265, when the city was pulsing with new life, yet bound to the feudal ways of proud and quarrelsome nobles Dante threw himself into every roaring battle. But despite the tempestuous background of this book, it is essentially a love story—one of the greatest and strangest love stories in history. Dante was a young boy when he first saw Beatrice at a children's May Day festival. From then until he died in Ravenna fifty years later, she was an inner vision of perfection to him. It was through his love for her that, after years of struggle and disappointment, Dante's greatness culminated in the writing of the "Divine Comedy."

Schachner has written a historical novel, engrossing from start to finish.

Service & Dependability

This Christmas
the war trains will roll
—as usual

Out on the line, December 25 will be as busy as any other day on the Southern Pacific. It won't be much of a holiday for our men at the front, either. The enemy doesn't stop shooting just because it's Christmas.

This Christmas Day and night we shall keep the war trains rolling, just as we have kept them rolling every day and night since Pearl Harbor.

To all the travelers and shippers we served this year—our heartfelt thanks for your sympathetic understanding of our problems, and the cheerful way you accepted the inconvenience of wartime transportation.

In sending you the Season's Greetings, we join with you in praying that next Christmas will be celebrated in a world of peace.

Civilians! To avoid disappointment please don't plan a holiday trip on Southern Pacific trains. Let a man in uniform go instead.

Cambrian Home And School Club Met Dec. 13th

The December meeting of the Cambrian Home and School club was held December 13, Mrs. Marion Pratt, president, presiding. Mrs. Viola Gripenstraw, the new treasurer was introduced.

A program of Christmas music had been arranged by Miss Barbara Root and Mrs. Helen Hobson.

Rev. Joseph Bennett delivered a Christmas message.

A social hour with a gift exchange was held after the program, the hostesses being mothers of fifth and sixth grade pupils.

Younger children were cared for by Camp Fire girls.

Reward for enterprising endeavor and efficiency in the performance of his assigned army duties, Private first class Miles A. Standish of Campbell, now stationed with the Army Air Force Unit at Pollock Air Field, Ia., was recently promoted to Corporal, according to Base Public Relations Officer Major Charles A. E. Goodwin.

Marine Corporal George William Sekavec, 22, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Sekavec of North Central avenue, has been returned to the states after a 29 month tour of duty in the South Pacific war zone. He awaits furlough orders at Marine Corps Base reassignment center, San Diego. The Campbell Leatherneck was formerly employed by the Permanente Metal Company.

Older residents of Campbell who will remember the Huntley family, will be interested in learning that one of the sons, James Huntley, is a chaplain at Camp Shoemaker. His family lives in San Jose.

IN THE HOME OF TOMORROW that you are planning now and for which you are buying and holding War Bonds, insist on Adequate Wiring. In your house of tomorrow you will be using more electric appliances as well as better and improved lighting in every room. Adequate Wiring makes sure there are plenty of convenience outlets, switches and circuits to give you the best service from your lamps and appliances. ✱ The small difference in cost between cheap or inadequate wiring is more than paid for by the extra conveniences, comforts and lower operating costs of appliances working under "full power" from Adequate Wiring.

FEED IT MANY WAYS!

Many dog owners feed Larro dry—just as it comes. Others moisten it with water or milk.

Some mix Larro with raw or cooked meat.

... Or with fish, gravies, broths, soups, stews.

... Or with table scraps or bread and milk.
